

Dear CBA South-East members,

I hope you have been enjoying the fantastic weather we have had recently. I know many of you have been out digging, or are excavating as we speak. It is also a perfect opportunity to get out and see what is going on and experience our local heritage. Our recent tour of the excavations of Folkestone villa and nearby, historic Dover couldn't have been better scheduled on a sunny, but not too hot day. We still have two more tours planned for this year, one at Ovingdean medieval settlement and Lewes, East Sussex, on the 17th September, and the other at Colemore Romano-British site, Hampshire, and Farnham town and castle, Surrey, on the 15th October. These promise to be fascinating excursions, and I urge you book a place if you have not already. Please check the website for details <http://www.cbасouth-east.org/events/cbase-tours-and-field-trips/> or contact our Events Officer, Anne Sassin, asassinallen@gmail.com to book.

Also, if you have not reserved your seat for this year's CBA South-East Annual Conference and AGM in Sevenoaks, please do so. Last year's sell-out means that early booking is advised. Our organisers Nathalie Cohen and Vicky Owen have put together a great line-up of fantastic speakers who will illuminate the theme of Medieval Palaces and Parks in the South-East. I very much look forward to seeing you all there on the Saturday 19th of November. Booking details are on the website <http://www.cbасouth-east.org/events/cbase-annual-conference/> or contact Vicky Owen studentrep@cbасouth-east.org

Saturday, October 15th 2016 (8:00-17:00)

Sussex Archaeological Society – The Age of Luxury: the Georgian Country House and its Setting c 1700-1820

Between 1700 and 1820, old houses were transformed and new ones built, some on a spectacular scale by owners who would now be regarded as multi-millionaires. The influence of the Grand Tour on country house owners of this period was considerable and architectural styles were varied. Landscapes also evolved from formal to the famous landscape parks of the mid to later eighteenth century and interiors became increasingly showy. The speakers, all specialists in their fields, will address these many aspects of the Georgian country house.

Fee £45 – this event is now sold out, but contact members@sussexpast.co.uk to be placed on a waiting list For booking form and programme, see
