

Dear CBA South-East members,

On joining the committee in 2016, I was delighted to find a healthy and robust set of accounts. I see my role as not just one which banks income and pays expenditure as required, whilst maintaining a strict set of accounts, but an enabler to important operations within the organisation.

Consequently, we have not just this year's operational expenses secured, but also the annual expenses for the following year as an ongoing 'reserve'. My fellow Trustees have worked hard to cut our operational expenses in the last year, and this allows us them to divert any surplus funds into grant funding. The pleasure it gives me to be able to write a cheque to support research into the archaeology of the South East, is one that offers a warm glow – all too welcome at this time of year. As it currently stands, profits from our annual conferences and that made from donations to us, allow for grant spend for the next few years, and we continue to work hard to extend that funding outlook.

Lastly, did you know that you are able to online shop and at the same time (at the expense of your chosen supplier), make money for CBA South East? We are registered with the charity fund raiser Give as you Live.. To register, use this link – <https://www.giveasyoulive.com/signup/choose-charity> Our cause is 'Council for British Archaeology South –East'. All proceeds go straight towards our grants – happy shopping.

Shining a light on the 5th century AD in Surrey and the South-East: how did Roman Britain become Saxon England

A Surrey Archaeological Society conference The South-East corner of England ought to be a key area in the understanding of this period. It has long been recognised that a simple 'invasion and replacement' demographic model should not be imposed in this, or any other region of England. Here (again, as elsewhere) there are clear examples of important elements of the Late Roman infrastructure of sites and roads emerging as components of the Early Anglo-Saxon settlement pattern. But we still have very little archaeological evidence for the period, in particular from c. AD 410-470.

The aim of the conference is to bring together a number of scholars with relevant expertise from each side of this gap and challenge them to say what they think was happening. Were many of the 'Saxons' here before the end of the Roman period? Is there a case for much more assimilation and continuity than is suggested in the traditional histories of the period? Can we arrive at a new model for the transition from Roman to Saxon in the South-East that takes account of current understanding of the later Roman and early Saxon periods, and establish a programme of work by which the model could be tested?

Grants

Canterbury Historical and Archaeological Society has limited funds available to award a grant to individuals researching any aspect of the history or archaeology of Canterbury and its surrounding area. It is envisaged that a grant would not normally exceed £500. The deadline for applications is 30th June. For full details contact the Honorary Secretary of the Grants Committee, Mr Barrie Beeching at beechings1@gmail.com

The Home Front Legacy project is coordinated by the Council for British Archaeology and helps local communities find out about, and map, the remains of the First World War, raising awareness of the wide range of archaeology that survives across the UK.

By recording sites you are making a valuable contribution to the archaeological record and ensuring that the story of these sites is preserved for future generations. There are a number of ways you can get involved and encourage your members to take part:

- Have a look at the website <http://www.homefrontlegacy.org.uk/wp/> and see what has already been recorded near you
- Host a Home Front Legacy meeting to work through the training guide together, go on a site visit, or carry out some desk based research to find out about sites you could record in your local area
- Work with your local branch of the Young Archaeologists Club using resources for young people
- Share information about the project with your members and encourage them to get involved via your newsletters and social media

Please email any events, talks, recent publications relevant to the south-east, or fieldwork opportunities to events@cbasouth-east.org

Next e-letter will be issued approximately on May 1st– please send any May, June or July info by April 27th.
